(suddenly dead serious)
He told you that?

21 INT. TTTS PATIENT'S ROOM - DAY

Sc.1

21

start

Meredith performs Julie's ultrasound. Tension is thick.

MEREDITH
You're wondering about Dr.
Montgomery's comment earlier.

JULIE
I do wonder what kind of woman goes after another person's husband.

MEREDITH
If it makes any difference...

JULIE
Happened to me. Jeff left me for some woman at his firm. Last month.
Just don't understand why... By the way, that gel is really cold.

MEREDITH
Sorry.
(beat)
I'm sorry. About your husband.

JULIE
Worst part is, I don't think he is.

MEREDITH
I'm checking a few things today.
Heart rate, fluid levels--

JULIE
Fetal location. Ovaries. I know the drill. I have a broadband connection at home. Do my research.
How about you?

MEREDITH
Excuse me?

JULIE
Did you even ask Dr. Montgomery's husband if he was married before you went home with him?

Off Meredith's look...

JULIE (CONT'D)
Didn't think so. I know your kind.

But Meredith's look has nothing to do with their conversation -- it's a response to what she sees on the ultrasound.

What?

Obviously, what Meredith sees is troubling...

22 INT. JOE'S ROOM - DAY

22

Alex sits with his head in his hands and Joe itemizes his hospital stay the way he might keep track of his books.

ALEX

You can't be broke. Your bar's always packed.

JOE

With doctors who can't pay their bills.

(off Alex's demeanor)

You more upset about me losing the bar or me losing my life?

ALEX

(quietly)

Isn't there someone I can notify?
To be with you?

JOE

You've spent last call at the bar with me almost every night since you started working here, Karev.

(beat)

You know there's no one.

Alex goes for his wallet. George pokes his head in -- but waits for a moment before alerting them to his presence.

ALEX

You can't shut the place down. It's an institution.

JOE

Owned that bar fourteen years and never once been inside this hospital 'til now

(marking worry)

Funny, right?

ALEX

Look. I'll pay my tab. Right now. That's gotta be good for - at least... something, right? How much is it?
